RATIFICATION.—Considering the state of the weather and the few hours notice, quite a large crowd turned out last Saturday night to ratify the nomination of Tilden and Hendricks. The display of fireworks was very fine. McQuie's colored band made the music for the occasion. Crech, Avery and Dunn made speeches and we are told that they were good and had the ring of the true metal in them. We did not hear them, not understanding that the programme included speaking. It was resolved to meet for the purpose of organizing a campaign club, notice of which will be seen elsewhere in this paper.

All left of the old jail is the foundation, with large piles of bricks and heavy timbers. Its demolition demonstrated that it was much stronger and more secure than generally believed; but the utter want of ventilation and the intolerable stench that clung to the dungeon even after two rains had drenched it, indicated the certain impairment of the health of those unlucky enough to be confined there—a slow process of torture that is not now tolerated in a christian community.

Elsewhere will be found the announcement of that sterling old Democrat, Richard Wells, as a candidate for county treasurer. Mr. Wells is favorably known throughout the entire county and has hosts of warm friends.

Our good friend Mr. Wat Powell has a tobacco stalk that beats that of Mr. Jas. N. Norton. From the stump of one cut last year and from it this year grew two large vigorous stalks, one of which M. Powell broke off and transplanted. Both are growing finely and would top at least twelve leaves. Mr. Powell, if he lives, will take them to the next centennial.

We learn that an Irish peddler known in this vicinity and county as Jimmy Fovever, but whose name is said by some to be McConnigle and by others to be Armstrong, was killed by a negro, last Saturday morning, about three miles below Wentzville. We heard no further particulars.

We have had some extremely hot weather.

Sports of the German Press.

(From the Ambassador, of St. Louis.)

The nomination of Samuel J. Tilden as the people's candidate for Presidency was effected on the second ballot in the Democratic national convention. The convention has given the people a reform and hard money candidate. A large number of well-meaning and patriotic citizens—and among them were some of the best and ablest men of the country—had suggested Mr. Bristow and Mr. Tilden for the presidential nominations of the two great parties. The Republicans at their convention refused to nominate Mr. Bristow, the candidate presented to them. The Democrats have acted more wisely, for they have heeded the popular voice and have nominated the other reform candidate, Mr. Tilden, who is, by far, the more energetic, the more experienced and the more cultivated and scholarly of the two. The universal cry of the independent Germans to the convention was: "Be true to the cause of reform and we'll stand by you at the polls, in spite of all former prejudices. Give us a candidate whose name shall be a guarantee that he, if elected, will carry out the reforms promised and so much needed, and we will work with you to elect him. We haven't been going about for two years like children and crying for reform only to work against a reformer when he comes amongst us. Give us Mr. Tilden, a true reformer, and we will support him at the polls."

This was the cry of the Independent Germans after the defeat of Bristow at Cincinnati, and it had an influence on the St. Louis convention. The nomination of Mr. Tilden was due in a great measure to that, and now that he has been nominated and is to be elected, may he be everything to the country that his past life has led us to expect. We will say nothing of the platform at this time, except that, as a whole and in all essentials, it is very satisfactory, and it breathes a patriotic and loyal spirit, the genuineness of which will not be disputed. Again we have a presidential candidate for whom we can vote with pleasure and from whom we may with assurance look for an honest and an efficient administration of affairs.

(From the Amerika, St. Louis.)

The national convention made a nomination for President much sooner than we had expected. Our readers are aware that we are not among those who believed that Mr. Tilden would make the strongest candidate that could be nominated. We are of the opinion that he could not carry the state of New York, whose electoral vote will undoubtedly decide the presidential election. But now, as we are of the opinion that the seven hundred and thirty-eight representatives of the Democracy, from all parts of the Union, canvassed that question thoroughly before balloting for a candidate, we give way to their judgment. The nomination for the Vice-Presidency will probably be given to Gov. Thomas A. Hendricks, of Indiana. Mr. Tilden's selection was due in great part to the supporters of Mr. Hendricks, who gave him eighty votes on the second ballot. If Mr. Hendricks accepts the nomination, the Democratic party will be pretty certain of carrying Indiana at the fall election, and that is a big step towards electing Tilden at the general election.

We haven't time now to speak in detail of the several planks of the platform adopted by the convention. Very little can be said against the platform, taken as a whole. One thing is certain, and that is that the Democratic convention had better platform builders than were to be found in the Cincinnati convention. The great questions of the day were handled with much skill. "Reform" is the big plank in the platform. The financial plank will probably meet with considerable opposition at first from the inflationists, but after examining it more carefully they will probably become reconciled. The treatment of the tariff question was all that we could wish, but there wasn't any necessity for saying so much about the public schools. The residents of the Pacific Slope are won over to the candidates by the insertion of a strong Chinese clause in the platform, something which the Republicans neglected to do. For this, we hope, the Germans will show their thankfulness at the polls next November.

We have been informed by persons in whom we place implicit confidence, that the instruments manufactured by Mr. Daniel F. Beatty of the BAUTY PIANO and Beatty's Golden Tongue Parlor Organ, at Washington, N. J., are constructed by a corps of skillful workmen, who have been in his employ for years, and are noted for the great interest they take in promoting and maintaining the already enviable reputation of his instruments. His advertisements appear in this issue of our paper, it would be well for persons interested to examine them. 34w4

Mr. Daniel F. Beatty, manufacturer and proprietor of the Beatty Piano and Beatty's celebrated Golden Tongue Parlor Organs, Washington, N. J., is certainly a very reasonable and generous man to transact business with. He makes this very fair proposition to any who may favor him with an order, as follows: "If the instrument does not prove satisfactory after a test trial of five days after receiving it, the purchase money will be refunded upon the return of the instrument, and he will pay freight charges both ways." This is certainly an exceedingly generous, and safe manner in which to transact business with him. He warrants his instruments for six years. See his advertisement. 8y1
